The Seiko 7002-7000 "SDS001" is a 41mm men's automatic watch with a stainless steel case and a black analog dial protected by hardlex crystal. It uses a 7002 caliber self-winding mechanical movement that cannot be manually wound or hacked (the second hand does not stop when the crown is pulled out). It ticks 6 times per second which gives the second hand a smoother movement than quartz watches

Anyhow, in 1988, Seiko decided to end production of the 6309 series of movements and replaced this watch with the Seiko 7002 and its 7000-series of movements. We'll never truly know why Seiko made the switch, but a look at the movement shows stamped versus machined parts, a lot more plastic, and less expensive finishing.
